SECOND MEMBER'S

NOTE ON THE RULES OF DISCUSSION

AT THE

DASARA REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY.

30. 10. 1916.

SECOND MEMBER'S NOTE ON THE RULES OF DISCUSSION AT THE DASARA REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY.

(30th October 1916).

Under Rule 23 of the Rules issued in G.O. dated the 22nd March 1915, subjects accepted for discussion are divided into Important and Ordinary and important subjects are given a time limit of 15 minutes and ordinary subjects 5 minutes. Every subject is to be introduced and explained by a member and there is no limit as to the number of members that should speak on one subject. From what took place at the last sittings of the Representative Assembly, it would strike an outside observer that a good deal of time is wasted and much unnecessary labour spent under the system now in vogue. A few points have struck me and I think they are worthy of consideration if any improvement in the method of business at the Assembly is to be effected.

In the first place as a Member of Government, I am bound to point out that the bound volume of accepted subjects under General and Local is not placed on the Member's table sufficiently early for him to take any responsibility in the matter of these discussions. For instance, the subjects with the Secretariat notes were placed on my table just a couple of days before the Assembly sat. I do not find any departmental or Secretariat Proceedings on record to lay down instructions of Government to the Secretariat officers to submit their notes to the Members in charge of the respective Departments of Government. Under Rule 19, all Local subjects which are within the competence of the local officers or a Head of Department are not to be admitted. Subjects solely within the competence of Government alone are to be included and as such, it stands to reason that the Member of Government in charge of the particular department to which any subject relates should be consulted and his views should be on record before the sittings actually commence. The advantages gained by taking the Member of Government into confidence are manifold. Apart from the advantages, I think it is due to the Member of Government who is responsible for the details of administration of departments under his charge and who must be considered to be familiar with all such details that an opportunity should be given to him after perusal of the Secretariat notes to record his view of the matter. At the last sittings, Members of Government so far as I am aware, had no such opportunity and the full brunt of the discussions fell on the Dewan. The advantage of having the Member's views on record is too obvious to be brought to notice. The Dewan at the end of the discussions can once for all dispose of the matter if he is in agreement with the Member's views giving a final reply and not merely say "noted for consideration". Further, in regard to important subjects involving large questions of policy, I would even go so far as to suggest that there should be a Council meeting to discuss those subjects at least a week before the sittings of the Assembly so that definite replies to the representations of the Members of the Assembly may be passed at such meeting once for all. If more definite replies are given the chances are that discussions would be limited and subjects will also come up with less frequency than they do now.

With reference to the Departments under my charge, there were 82 subjects brought forward of which at least 23 had been brought forward on previous occasions and some of these have been brought forward at least on three previous occasions. If I had been given the opportunity of referring to the subjects and the Secretariat notes, it was possible that I could have placed definite views before the Dewan prior to the sittings of the Assembly for his consideration so that suitable answers finally disposing of the subjects could have been given at the Assembly itself. When the subjects are thus disposed of there can be no need for an elaborate Secretariat procedure that is now being followed, in regard to each Dasara subject which before it is finally disposed of causes much laborious noting and correspondence and loss of energy and time. Besides, such a procedure only encourages the members to bring forward often the same subject time after time as no definite reply is given.

My recommendations therefore are -

(1) i. When a complete list of accepted subjects has been prepared with the Secretariat notes, the list should be placed before the Member in charge for recording his views.

(2) ii All important subjects involving questions of policy should be tabulated in a separate list and placed before the Council with the Member's views for the decision of the Council as a whole, sufficient time being given to obtain His Highness' orders on the resolution of the Council so that a final reply may be given to the Assembly when the subjects are raised for discussion.

(3) iii. All subjects not disposed of finally at the Representative Assembly should be taken up by the Member in charge of the Departments concerned and suitable Government orders should be issued at the earliest possible opportunity after necessary discussion in Council if need be under his initiative and res-responsibility.

Note. At present the whole procedure of the Representative Assembly and the business connected with it are more or less left to the responsibillity of the Secretariat.

iv. The division of subjects as important and ordinary under Rule 23 must necessarily to some extent be an arbitrary one; for, what one member may consider important may in fact, be a very ordinary subject and unless all the subjects are carefully reviewed in the manner suggested above, the division at the sittings can only be made in a summary fashion. It is therefore necessary either to change the classification or to have the division made by the Member in charge so far as his Departments are concerned subject to the approval of the Dewan. The classification of the subjects may be changed in the first alternative as follows:-

(a) Subjects involving modification of general policy laid down.

(b) Subjects making individual or specific requests(within the purview of the existing policy).

v. A limit may be placed as to the number of members of the Representative Assembly that may speak on one subject. With a view to see that this is done, the Representative Assembly may themselves go into a Subjects Committee and as more than one member often brings the same subject, they should agree among themselves as to who should be their spokesman. Three will be a suitable number to fix in this respect. Ordinary subjects should have only one speaker.

vi. The maximum time limit now fixed to 15 minutes for important and 5 minutes to ordinary never works in practice and has invariably to be extended. It would be preferable to fix a maximum time limit for each speaker to 5 minutes (absolute). Important subjects therefore will take 15 minutes maximum time which at the discretion of the President may be increased in special cases to 20 minutes.

Procedure

(7) As the second session of the Representative Assembly will be held next April and as the State Budget will come up for discussion then, I would suggest that these proposals may be considered in Council at an early date and suitable decisions arrived at.

(8) In this connection, I think the rules issued in Govt: order dated the 30th May 1916 may be discussed once more; for, I do not consider that an unlimited number of budget subjects can be allowed when the State Budget is discussed along with other subjects at the second session. It is also necessary that at least one or two days should be definitely set apart for budget discussion so that the members may regulate their speeches accordingly. Rule 5 requires change as the suggestions made at the budget discussions can be given effect to at once if adopted by Government. It is also necessary to safeguard the overlapping of the discussions and the criticisms on the budget in the Representative Assembly on the one hand and in the Legislative Council on the other, To avoid the efficacy of the criticisms being in any way diminished so far as the Legislative Council discussions are concerned it is necessary in my opinion to frame very definite rules regarding budget discussions of the Representative Assembly.

C These discussions should be in the form of representations and suggestions only and long speeches reviewing reviewing and criticising general finance or Government policy should be disallowed.

Representative Assembly Procedure.

Proposals of the Second Member.	Views of the Financial Secretary.
The Member of Government in charge of the particular department to which any subject related should be consulted and his views should be on record before the sittings actually commence.	The subjects as given in the agenda are merely headings or outlines of subjects for discussion in the Assembly. Arguments for and -- against, specific instances, illustrations, etc., are brought forward in full only during the course of such discussion. It is perhaps desirable that Members of Government should keep an open - mind on these subjects as far as possible until the discussion is over. Notes by the Secretariat Deputy Commissioners and Heads of departments are supposed only to furnish facts relevant to the -- subject which may be useful during the course of the discussion.
Definite replies may be given at the Assembly after considering the subjects in Council beforehand.	This is not desirable until full discussion takes place and it is known how far the subjects discussed find favour with the majority of the Assembly Members. The principal object of the --- Assembly is to find out the views of the representatives of the -- people on subjects affecting them and it would hardly be desirable for Government to arrive at final decision on questions before the matter is discussed in open Council and the trend of opinion is ascertained.
Recommendation of the Second Member (i)	The present procedure under which the Member is informed beforehand of the subjects to come under discussion and of relevant facts appertaining thereto and has also sometime for study of the important subjects seems sufficient and suitable.
Recommendation of the Second Member (ii)	To arrive at a decision in Council and to obtain His Highness' --- orders on a subject before it is even discussed in the Assembly and before the views of the majority of the Members of the -- Assembly are ascertained will hardly be a satisfactory arrangement. If Government were to decide questions before they are discussed in the Assembly what will be the value of such discussions and in what light will Members regard such discussion.

Approved in Council Done

Right to record his / suppose falls to the responsibility of Member by virtue of his office. I do not mean that he is not open to conviction on good grounds being shown.

Done

This is being done to some extent. The system is capable of much enlargement, attended with beneficent results. It is bound to enhance the dignity of the proceedings and to lead to practical results.

Full discussion so called means hatched conspiracy & rejection. This I consider is not desirable

I am entitled to ask for more so that my presence at the sittings may not be a mere matter of form.

Most of these matters reach a very advanced stage before they come in the draft of Executive Council orders. There may be [illegible] Each matter duly is pursued in good time. No very [illegible] may proposals are made [illegible]

Proposals of the Second Member.	Views of the Financial Secretary.
Recommendation of the Second Member (iii) This is more often the present procedure though cases are dealt with piecemeal: Dewey 15/11	I agree. As far as I know there is nothing at present to prevent the Member in charge from taking the initiative.
Recommendation of the Second Member (iv). The Diwan has to concur in regards classification according to the proposal and the President will necessarily have discretion in regulating the proceedings & varying the classification at the meeting, if need be.	In my respectful opinion classification of subjects and the order in which they are to be taken up should be decided by the Dewan as the President of the Assembly to whom alone the Members look forward for fair treatment in these matters.
Recommendation of the Second Member (v). Dewey 15/11 Subject to the discretion of the President, it is better to limit the no. of Speakers and the Assembly itself may choose the individual Speakers: Dewey 15/11	The number of Members who may be allowed to speak on a subject should be left to the discretion of the President. The main object of the Assembly is to elicit popular opinion on administrative subjects and it may frequnetly be desirable to allow a number of men to speak on important subjects.
Recommendation of the Second Member (vi). The time limits now provided for in the rules are not generally observed. either they should be removed: or the time limits should be revised duly. Dewey 15/11	In an Assembly like ours a rigid time limit will be difficult to apply and may be regarded as -- harsh. The institution is intended only to bring the grievances of the people to the notice of a Ma bap Government. The present practice may continue. The time limits may be more and more rigidly applied when the people begin to appreciate the value of such time limits.
Number of budget subjects.	I would not fix any limit to the number of budget subjects until the necessity for imposing a -- limit arises. We want to encourage budget points being discussed.
Days to be set apart for budget discussion.	As the second session is chiefly for budget discussion the budget should be taken up first and other business taken up only after these subjects are finished. // I agree; the first two days may do well for the purpose subject to any alteration required at the time Dewey 15/11

Proposals of the Second Member.	Views of the Financial Secretary.
Prevention of overlapping of budget discussions in the Representative Assembly and in the Legislative Council.	Desirable but it is likely to be resented by both bodies. The Legislative Council cannot be prevented from making suggestion as regards individual -- items and the Representative Assembly may also put criticism on general finances in the form of representations.
	Separate proposals have already been submitted fixing a budget calendar and points for orders in connection with the preparation of the budget with a view to the discussion of the draft budget in the Representative Assembly.
	The rules of 30th May 1916 may be modified as shewn in the paper annexed.

1. The draft State budget for the ensuing year will be discussed in the April session of the Representative -- Assembly according to the following rules:-

2. Questions on the budget may be proposed by members and sent up with the original list of subjects for the April session or with a the supplementary list. Their number in -- either case need not be b limited and they will not be treated as forming part of the subjects for which a maximum limit is imposed.

Is against any Supplementary list. Such raises how much work on the officers hopeless, & leaves little time for efficient business.

b. It is necessary to limit the total no of subjects including all kinds to about 250:

3. These questions will be separately entered in the list of subjects and some time set apart for their consideration. Generally in the April session the budget will be taken up first and other subjects ~~are~~ afterwards.

4. Government reserve the power of rejecting any -- question or questions without assigning reasons.

In this respect I agree 15/11

5. In addition, a general discussion of the budget may also be allowed by the Dewan-President subject to the usual restrictions relating to discussion in the Assembly.

6. Useful suggestions will be noted for consideration while framing the final budget.

7. No discussion shall be permitted in regard to items of receipt or expenditure relating to any subject removed from the cognizance of the Mysore Legislative Council by the proviso to Section 12 (a) of the Mysore Legislative Regulation, 1907.
